

economies only since the depression years of the 1930s. In India the commonly used term is “fiscal consolidation” which refers to a process where government’s fiscal health is getting improved and is indicated by reduced fiscal deficit. Fiscal consolidation is a reduction in the underlying fiscal deficit. It is not aimed at eliminating fiscal debt.

Golden Handshake (also known as VRS in India) : Golden Handshake, is an independent decision of employee to end his employment based on some decided agreement or contract, so as to terminate the legal relationship of employer – employee.

Structural Slowdown of Economy : A structural slowdown is a more deep-rooted phenomenon that occurs due to a one-off shift from an existing paradigm. The changes, which last over a long-term, are driven by disruptive technologies, changing demographics, and/or change in consumer behaviour. In such a scenario, a monetary and fiscal stimulus won’t be enough to revive the economy. Fixing such problems would require the government to undertake some structural policies. The best example in this regard would be the reforms that were carried out to address the crisis in 1991.
